This fan-fiction article, Boholo va Kale, was written by Witcher190. Please do not edit this fiction without the writer's permission.

The "Old Civilization" (*Translated from Mardu language : Boholo va Kale) It's a term used by the Mardu people to describe the sverg ruins that can be found in the center of the Korath Desert. Which are unknown the reasons why it were abandoned.

Although some later investigations, have discovered there also, the presence of gnome ruins. But it is not known if this ruins are posterior, previous or existed at the same time as the "Old Civilization".

There are several theories about the disappearance of the "Old Civilization" Although the most popular is the one proposed by Fabio Sachs in his book "Chronicles of the East". Which talks about that the Korath Desert, before being a desert, was an a green area where this civilization inhabited and prospered but for some reason, this green area (Presumably, over exploitation of resources) began to desertify and this led to the collapse of civilization.

Although Fabio doesn't discard the meteorite theory either and considers that desertification could also be due to this cause. Relating it to the Zerrikanian legends he heard during the expedition.

Master Istredd of Aedd Gynvael, participant in the expedition supported the monster theory. Which talks about how the creations of the inhabitants of the "Old Civilization" turned against them and ended up destroying it. Evolving further into the dangerous creatures of the Korath Desert and destroying before that the old ecosystem.

Legend has it that at some point in her life, the mythical Ciri recovered the legendary sword Gveir from these ruins and later used it in her crusade against the Cosmic Horrors because of its unique properties.
